Al Ain & Abu Dhabi

Two expansion pre-concept briefs. The Sharjah blueprint, taken city by city. Tenure and macro held constant; location, catchment and whitespace re-run from the data; the concept rebuilt to fit what each city cannot buy today.

Concept is the output of data, not an input.

The same six-step value chain that produced the Sharjah asset. Tenure and macro carry over unchanged. The middle three levers are re-run from each city's own data, and the concept follows.

01

Tenure

Musataha. No terminal value. Income must clear the hurdle inside the lease term.

CONSTANT

02

Macro

Community retail under-built across the UAE. Emirati villa catchments insulated from expat flows.

03

Location

Re-run per city. The plot logic, frontage and arrival change with the site.

RE-RUN

04

Catchment

Re-run per city. Who lives within the drive-time ring, and what they cannot buy.

RE-RUN

05

Whitespace

Re-run per city. The verified category gaps that become the tenant spine.

RE-RUN

Brief One

THE GARDEN CITY · EMIRATI HEARTLAND

The Ranch at Al Ain

A fine-dining market hall and a world-class wellness hangar for the UAE's most concentrated Emirati villa city. The mandate is set; the data confirms why it holds.

An affluent Emirati villa city, under-retailed by design.

Al Ain is the Emirati heartland of Abu Dhabi emirate: a family, villa-dominant, owner-occupier market that has been deliberately held below global retail density.

AL AIN REGION POPULATION

Owner-occupier Emirati wealth.

Villa households across Al Towayya, Asharej, Falaj Hazzaa and Al Jimi. End-user demand, low speculative volatility.

A fast-growing tourism spine.

473,100 hotel guests in FY2025, up 9%. DCT positions Al Ain on culture, wellness and adventure: Jebel Hafeet, the UNESCO oases, Green Mubazzarah.

A committed villa pipeline.

10,316 villas across five developments inside the AED 106bn Abu Dhabi housing programme, Aldar's Al Oyouun Village among them.

Enclosed malls only.

Roughly seven hypermarket-anchored malls, repetitive anchors, no open-air lifestyle destination in the city.

Sources: SCAD 2024; Bayut 2025 listings; Plan Al Ain 2030 / Aldar 2016; Abu Dhabi Media Office & DCT 2025; Arabian Post 2026. Villa pricing is asking, not registered transactions.

The mandate set fine dining and a world-class fitness anchor. Targeted verification holds it up: the fine-dining whitespace is acute, the premium-gym lane is real but contested, which sharpens the brief toward integrated wellness.

FINE-DINING VENUES IN AL AIN

vs 56 in Abu Dhabi city, 100+ in Dubai (MICHELIN 2026)

Fine dining: an acute, leaking gap.

The entire upper tier is four to five ageing hotel restaurants. Affluent residents drive to Abu Dhabi and Dubai for chef-driven dining. Note the operating constraint: licensed dining in Al Ain sits in hotels, so the model favours a licensed-hotel partnership or a destination format.

PREMIUM LARGE-FORMAT GYMS

one credible incumbent at scale; rest value or hotel

Gym: win on integration, not on a box.

A single large-format incumbent already holds the pure-fitness lane. The open ground is the integrated facility: premium training plus structured recovery, longevity and boutique studios, where no incumbent exists.

INTEGRATED WELLNESS + LONGEVITY

None

no operator combines training, recovery, longevity

Sources: MICHELIN Guide 2026; Gold's Gym UAE 2026; GymNation 2026; operator triangulation (Rotana, Danat, Radisson, Mercure), 2025 to 2026. Venue counts are triangulated estimates; no Al Ain F&B census is published.

Where supply ends and demand begins.

Each category scored on Al Ain supply against assessed catchment demand. The primary gaps form the spine of the tenant programme.

CATEGORY	SUPPLY	DEMAND	VERDICT	NOTE
Destination fine dining	ABSENT	HIGH	PRIMARY	Zero standalone venues; demand leaks to Abu Dhabi and Dubai
Integrated wellness + longevity	ABSENT	HIGH	PRIMARY	Recovery and longevity exist only as fragmented clinics
World-class gym (large format)	THIN	HIGH	PRIMARY	One incumbent; differentiate via integration
Open-air lifestyle retail	ABSENT	HIGH	PRIMARY	No operating open-air village; one hybrid in build
Specialty & artisan grocer	THIN	MED	SECONDARY	Anchors are mass hypermarkets, Carrefour and LuLu
Children's enrichment	THIN	MED	SECONDARY	Young, family-weighted, high-National catchment
Hypermarket, fashion, perfumes	SATURATED	-	AVOID	Replicated across seven enclosed malls

Five categories

Al Ain cannot buy today.

The primary and supporting whitespaces, drawn from the category map. These are the spine of the proposed tenant mix.

01 Destination fine dining Zero standalone venues today Chef-driven, licensed via hotel partnership. The category the catchment leaves the city to buy.	02 Gym & wellness hangar 1,500+ target members World-class training fused with recovery and longevity. Integration is the moat, not square metres.	03 Longevity & recovery None integrated today Cryotherapy, contrast, IV and diagnostics under one roof. Fragmented clinics only, no destination.	04 Specialty grocer Daily repeat trips Fresh-focused artisan format. The base-load revenue engine away from mass hypermarket anchors.	05 Open-air lifestyle First mover position A true open-air village, experience-led, differentiated from the one hybrid scheme now in build.

Children's enrichment and a multi-specialty clinic sit alongside as complementary secondary whitespaces.

The Ranch at Al Ain, built on three pillars.

Not a mall, not a hypermarket extension. A fine-dining market hall paired with a world-class wellness hangar, on the same industrial-village typology.

01 / PILLAR

Fine-dining market hall

WEEKLY DIFFERENTIATOR

- Ten to fifteen curated chef-driven operators anchor the hall as a regional weekend destination.
- Operable glazing to shaded terraces; year-round dining against the oasis and mountain backdrop.
- Licensed dining structured through hotel partnership; the rest reads as a premium destination.

02 / PILLAR

Gym, wellness & longevity

FOOTFALL GENERATOR

- A world-class steel-portal hangar: 1,500-plus members at scale, daylit training floors.
- Structured recovery, longevity diagnostics and boutique studios under one roof.
- The integration no incumbent offers, generating consistent cross-visits to F&B.

03 / PILLAR

Daily lifestyle anchor

BASE-LOAD REVENUE

- Specialty artisan grocer, clinic, pharmacy and service kiosks for daily repeat trips.
- An open-air village format the city does not yet have, tuned to villa dwellers.
- Cross-subsidises the fine-dining anchor through the ramp-up period.

One shell, the mix is the lever.

Gym hangar tilted west, fine-dining hall on axis, specialty grocer tilted east, with gallery seams between. The envelope is held constant and cheap; the tenant mix does the work.

SHELL · CONSTANT, INCOME-OPTIMISED

Identical to Sharjah: steel portal frame, lightweight envelope, slab on grade, build matched to the usufruct. Income clears the hurdle, so no masonry premium is chased.

THE ONLY TILT · MINOR, TENANT-LED

Fit-out concentrates where rent pays for it: the fine-dining hall. Wellness directs spend to MEP, not finishes. The lever is tenant selection, not structure.

Brief Two

THE CAPITAL · OPEN-BOOK WHITESPACE

The Ranch at Abu Dhabi

Not a replica of the Sharjah formula. A data-led whitespace search points the capital somewhere it cannot buy today: a premium social, wellness and food destination for its affluent residents, its wealth-migration cohort and its cultural footfall.

A capital catchment, not a commuter suburb.

Abu Dhabi is not Sharjah. The defining catchment is the wealth and culture spine of Saadiyat, Al Maryah and Al Reem: affluent residents, the ADGM professional base, and a record stream of relocating capital and visitors.

UAE leads the world, ~9,800 in 2025

VISITORS, 2025

26.6M

record; DCT targets 39.3m by 2030

Wealth is arriving, and concentrating.

The UAE ranks first in the world for millionaire migration, and Abu Dhabi's ADGM has grown its workforce 51% to 44,339 with assets under management up sharply. This cohort has no home base in the capital.

A tight, space-starved market.

Prime retail runs near 95% occupancy and Grade A office vacancy sits below 1.5%, with rents climbing. Quality lifestyle space is scarce, not surplus.

A cultural district now fully live.

Louvre Abu Dhabi drew 1.4m visitors in 2025, the Zayed National and Natural History museums opened in late 2025, and Guggenheim follows in 2026. Cultural footfall reached 8.6m across the emirate.

The location lever moves.

Where Sharjah was a single villa ring, the capital concept addresses a destination catchment on the islands. Site selection narrows to the Saadiyat, Al Maryah and Al Reem axis.

Sources: SCAD 2024; ADGM decade announcement 2026; Henley & Partners 2025; DCT Abu Dhabi 2025 Annual Report; Louvre Abu Dhabi 2025; CBRE / JLL Q3 to Q4 2025. Where noted, figures are UAE-level and flagged accordingly.

Why the capital needs a different anchor.

Copying the Sharjah mix of supermarket, gym and generic F&B would add undifferentiated stock to a space-starved market. The capital's own gaps point to social, wellness and food, the categories its affluent base leaves the city to buy.

MEMBERS' CLUBS IN THE CAPITAL

The social and food gaps are stark.

There is no members' or creative club in the capital and no operating curated food hall, while Dubai runs a deep stack of both. For a city now leading global wealth migration, that is the clearest whitespace on the board.

The state has placed its wellness bet.

The Department of Health created the world's first Healthy Longevity Medicine Centre licence, and M42 runs the largest omics centre outside the US on an 800,000-genome programme. Preventative wellness is policy, not trend.

Five categories

that fit the capital, not the template.

The redrawn spine: social, food and wellness lead, riding the capital's wealth inflow and cultural halo, with fitness and convenience as the base load.

01 Members' & creative club 0 in the capital today A members' and family-office house with workspace, dining and programming for the ADGM and wealth-migration cohort.	02 Curated food hall 0 operating, vs 3 in Dubai A destination market hall of curated chef-driven operators. The capital's clearest food whitespace.	03 Longevity & wellness ~2 clinics in the capital Preventative, diagnostic, longevity-led care. A world-first licence with the cluster still sitting in Dubai.	04 Arts-led F&B 8.6M cultural visits, 2025 Experiential, culturally-themed dining and retail riding the now-live Saadiyat museum district.	05 Boutique fitness & recovery No category leader Reformer, strength and structured recovery studios riding a steep activity curve. A land-grab phase.

Specialist family health and STEAM discovery are strong capital-wide gaps better matched to a community-corridor site such as Al Shamkha, and are carried as the alternative-site option. Sources: ADGM 2026; Henley 2025; Time Out 2026; DoH 2025; DCT 2025.

The Ranch at Abu Dhabi, a social and wellness house.

One shell, the mix is the lever.

Wellness and fitness tilted west, the curated food hall on axis, the members' club tilted east, with gallery seams between.
Same constant envelope as Al Ain; the tenant mix does the work.

SHELL · CONSTANT, INCOME-OPTIMISED

The same steel portal shell and lightweight envelope as Al Ain. The usufruct is cleared by income, so the envelope stays cheap and fast in both cities.

THE ONLY TILT · MINOR, TENANT-LED

Fit-out concentrates on the members' club and food hall, where rent and membership pay for it. The wellness pavilion spends on MEP. The lever is tenant selection, not structure.

What holds, and what is re-run.

The constants travel. The levers are re-run from each city's data, and the concept follows. Same typology, three different answers.

The Ranch

Al Ain & Abu Dhabi

Al Ain

Fine-dining market hall and a world-class wellness hangar, integrating longevity and recovery, for the Emirati heartland. Mandate verified by an acute dining gap.

Abu Dhabi

A social and wellness house, members' club, curated food hall and longevity pavilion, on the capital's wealth and culture spine. The gaps the city leaves to Dubai today.

Both on the same industrial-village typology and Musataha logic. Next step: site selection and plot-specific massing per city, then catchment isochrones on the confirmed parcels.
